

Literacy session 3

Challenge

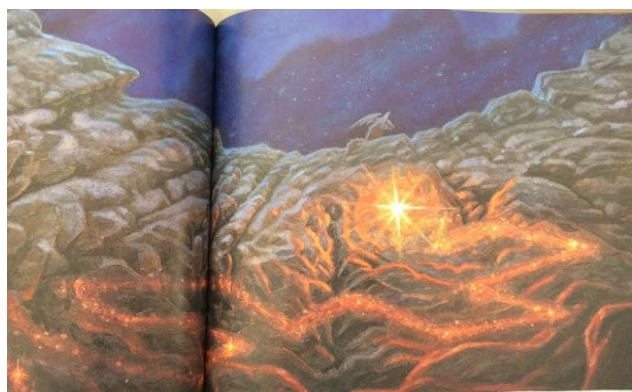

Let's say you are Ignis. Can you write a letter to Cara and tell her what happened after you left her? Remember to thank her for telling you to look for a volcano and for being such a good friend. You need to also, tell her how you felt at the end!

Ending to the story

Ignis leaves Cara and flies to an old volcano. The fire had gone out long ago and he began to cry. Just as he had given up hope, the very last spark from the volcano's last eruption, 100 years ago, appeared. Ignis took a huge gulp and sucked in the last flame through his open mouth.

Ignis breathed fire for the very first time. He spent the night breathing fire and the next day flew home. When he got home, he told the wise old dragons from Dragonland what had happened.

He then showed all the dragons, including his best friends Flamma and Scintilla, how he could breath fire as high as mountains.

Dear Cara,

Can you guess what happened to me? What an amazing time I had after you left to go home!

When you had gone I did what you said and looked for a volcano.
